

ST. DAVID'S SCHOOL

Humanities Teacher

St. David's seeks a dynamic, talented and dedicated Humanities Teacher, who inspires students to think critically, reason logically and express themselves clearly in speaking and writing.

St. David's Humanities teachers are skilled writers, lovers of literature and history, and eager scholars of the field. They, individually and collectively, inspire intellectual curiosity, creative thought, disciplined analysis, confident speaking, clear writing, and genuine appreciation of literature rooted in close reading of primary texts. The Humanities department unites the major events, texts and works of art which span the ancient, medieval and modern eras. Through interdisciplinary inquiry, students gain an appreciation of the wonder, majesty and irony of the civilizational roots of the Western intellectual tradition.

St. David's is an independent school in the Episcopal school tradition that prepares young men and women for college and life by challenging them to excel in the vital areas of faith, virtue, and knowledge. Through a commitment to academic excellence, St. David's empowers students to take ownership of their learning and have a positive effect on their community. Members of the faculty are committed to the life of the mind and enjoy learning, together, and are called invest in the lives of students both in the classroom and also in the context of our many co-curricular opportunities (e.g. athletics, fine arts and clubs).

Preference will be given to candidates with three years of experience and a master's degree in a related field.

Salary and benefits are competitive, classes are small, and the environment is collaborative. All candidates are encouraged to learn more about the mission and vision of the school through our website at stdavidsraleigh.org.
